

Brief of Work:

On the left, there are an Old General Post Office and signboards of businesses such as law firms and dental offices, which are hung on an industrial building. They were drawn black-and-white to show their disappearance amidst the rapid development of Hong Kong and create nostalgic feelings.

In contrast with black-and-white objects from the past, the colourful skyscrapers in the upper right hand corner show positivity and hope for Hong Kong's bright future. In the middle, the staircase illustrates the transition from the past to the future. The fancy car which points towards the sky symbolises the prosperity of Hong Kong.

The woman in the middle wearing a black amah suit and carrying sweet tangerines is gazing at the skyscrapers and the sky towards the future. The gas deliverer in the lower right corner is heading towards the path which leads to the skyscrapers. The two characters show the aspirations of the people from the past.
