

Brief of Work

I would like to use this painting to convey the message of cherishing the people in our lives, particularly our family. The grandfather on the left hand side is recalling the time with his late mother and her love for the family. We never know when unexpected events may arise, and if we wait until we lose them to understand their value, it will be too late. We must learn to appreciate our loved ones and spend the limited time we have with them.