

Brief of Work

My piece is about old Central transforming into modern Central. The European-style post office has now been re-established into a contemporary office. This painting shows the contrast between the past and the present: the enormous differences in people, architecture and atmosphere. The pace of the bustling Central a century ago has quickened and technology has advanced. Gone were the past Central's unique bicycle bell sounds, the shouts of citizens bargaining and the rolling sounds of the rickshaw strolling in the rocky streets.
