

Brief of Work

My painting is based on post-war Hong Kong, as mentioned in the poem. There were no tall buildings, and the place looked like a poor, old village. Although people nowadays may think that rice with soy sauce is unhealthy, during that time, it represented a bowl of warmth and hope. For every refugee in the painting, the clay pot of rice was the most delicious delicacy they had ever had.