

Brief of Work

In this painting, we can see that the girl wants to touch the bird's nest but her grandfather stops her. The poem tells us that her grandfather's mother had died when he was fourteen and the nest actually reminds him of his mother. It symbolises the presence of his mother who is believed to be watching her descendants quietly in another way.

In this picture, I definitely want to show how much the speaker's grandpa misses his mother and still remembers the days when they were together. I think that family is absolutely the treasure of my life. Family members give me support as well as encourage me all the time, which inspires me to draw this picture.
