

Selected Value: Empathy

Claws of Empathy

Beneath the waves, where tides conspire,
Friendship blooms – despite the fire.
In waters deep, our home we claim,
A bond unbroken, claw to claw
We care, we share, through storm and calm
A chorus rising, soft yet psalm.
Frayed threads of doubt may fade to naught
When hearts align, and hands are sought.
Though small we stand, our strength is found
In threads that weave the fractured ground.
With claws entwined, through thick and thin,
We stitch empathy into our skin.
For flaws and fractures, claws can mend –
A bridge of trust where empathy bends.
Together mighty, tiny yet whole,
We prove love's tide outlasts the soul.
